

A. F. BYRD

Says Kentucky Needs
More Statesmen and Less Politicians.

ADVOCATES PUTTING CRIMINALS BEHIND BARS.

We extract the following from A. F. Byrd's speech on Monday night of last week when he and Judge Lindsay, of Denver, Col., addressed a Lexington audience: "The question of lawlessness is one with which we are familiar in Kentucky. This lawlessness is not confined to Kentucky alone, but is the Atlantic to the Pacific—wherever we go, when it is learned that we are from Kentucky we are in a way under suspicion. "Kentucky's grand old Union, proud to be the greatest of the Kingdom, proud of its laws, people, institutions, I come to speak about a subject not calculated to instill pride—the question of lawlessness. "Six years' experience as Commonwealth's Attorney has given me opportunity to gain some knowledge of the subject to which I am assigned to speak—the lawlessness of the mountains. I will not be harsh nor unjust for they are my people, my own blood, most of them my friends, so I can not but be fair.

"Most of these people are poor, but no braver, truer, nobler people live. Whenever a call for men is made to fight in defense of their country's flag, no others are readier than they. Brave to the point of recklessness, they have a peculiar code of avenging wrongs, and have less frequent recourse to the courts—the result is what is known as feudal warfare.

COUNTY OF BREATHITT.

"There is one crime in which one section exceeds any other section of the State or country—the crime of murder by assassination. I mean, to be more specific, the county of Breathitt.

"Since January, 1898, there have been probably 100 homicides in this county. In some cases the murderers have been tried, and some sentenced. Bribery, intimidation and perjury often protect them. Trials are not held like in other counties, nor in conformity with the law.

"In a trial here, when asked how the result would be, the man answered, 'I did not hear the evidence.' In Breathitt's county a similar question was answered, 'I have not seen the jury.'

AN ILLUSTRATION.

"In order to illustrate further how cases are tried there: Some men stole some meat and hid it away, being unable to get it to their homes. Finding the meat, the owner, with officers, kept a watch for the return of the rogues. They fired on the officers and the fire was returned. One was killed and the other was brought to trial. He was poor. A lawyer was appointed to defend him and the court agreed to let the man plead guilty, life imprisonment to be the sentence, it being pleaded that he did not fire a shot. The jury was instructed to return a sentence of life or hang. It developed that ten were willing to hang the man rather than hang the jury.

"Five of the jurors were selected the next day, to try a similar case. It was conclusively proven that the man had killed an old woman on her door-step in cold blood. Ten minutes' deliberation served to free him, for he had served a term in the penitentiary—he had killed his man, and could be used by others.

THREE FAMOUS ASSASSINATIONS.

Mr. Byrd touched on the assassination of Dr. Cox in Jackson, which, he says, "still remains a mystery. A few witnesses intimated that they knew something. They were waited on, told to get and they got.

"The murder of James Cockrill was rehearsed, with the efforts to have the killing investigated, without success, at the two following terms of court.

"No one was indicted for that crime. A third notable crime was the assassination of J. B. Marcus. He had been notified of plans to kill him. He left his home and went to the West, later returned. He remained in hiding, only going on the street with his wife or sisters. On the 4th of May, 1903, he was fired on from behind. It was at this time that the indignation of the State was aroused. A trial was had in that county—a hung jury was the result.

"The men in that county who can control the jury—and they do so—decide this way, and it is done.

A LIVING ISSUE.

"This question of lawlessness in Kentucky is a living issue.

"Stop the crime by stopping the criminal, and stop the criminal by putting him behind prison bars. (Applause.)

"Because of the condition in Breathitt, the outside world asks you, when you say you are from Kentucky, 'if you are from Jackson.' (Laughter.)

"Beyond Jackson lie Breathitt, Perry, Knott, Leslie, Magoffin, all undeveloped, vast territories of mineral and timber wealth. It needs capital to open it up. But talk to capitalists and suggest this undeveloped field. They get the map, follow the L. & E. and find the town of Jackson. They raise their hands in holy terror (laughter), and say, 'deliver me from the town of Jackson.'

"Some have tried it, and were driven out by the spirit of lawlessness.

"This question can be solved. Kentucky needs today more statesmen and less politicians (prolonged applause), men who disregard party for State interests. If there are any Legislators here tonight, I want to ask them to do their part toward blotting out the stain on Kentucky's escutcheon. Then those refugees from Breathitt will return and make that section as great and good as any other in the State. I thank you."

$60,000 for a Site at Frankfort.

That the conference bill providing for the appropriation of $60,000 will not have plain sailing in the House was indicated by a meeting of a number of Representatives. Representative Miller, of Madison; Wells, of Callaway; Wade, of Green, and Day, of Rowan, were the leading spirits of the session, and they agreed to make a determined fight against the measure. They stated that they regarded the appropriation of the $20,000 for the purchase of additional land as a useless expense. They will ask the Senate to recede from this portion of the bill, but it is believed that in case of a refusal, and as a last resort, the bill will be passed.

We never deny the Lord so emphatically as when we insist on taking our own way instead of his.

AN EFFORT IN THE RIGHT DIRECTION.

Let the County Be Free From The Curse.

The undersigned legal voters of precincts of in Bath county, Ky., hereby petition the County Court of Bath county, Ky., and the County Judge of Bath county, Ky., to order an election to be held in the County of Bath, State of Ky., on the day of May, 1905 for the purpose of taking the sense of the legal voters of said Bath county who are qualified to vote at an election for its county officers upon the proposition whether or not spirituous, vinous or malt liquors shall be sold, bartered or loaned in said Bath county, State of Kentucky.

Said prohibition to apply to Drug stores.

The above petition is being circulated throughout the county, and we think it exceedingly timely. We call special attention to the clause relative to drug stores. The Fog Horn desires to go on record as being opposed to running whisky out of a saloon into a drug store.

The sentiment to put whisky out of drug stores is born of necessity. Druggists have abused their privileges till the good people are getting tired of it, and why not? Is not whisky from a drug store just as destructive, just as polluting, just as mind wrecking and just as virtue destroying as from a saloon? Does it help the devil to give him respectability? Our observation is that he will do the more harm because he looks so fine. Besides it seems to us that if men cannot be trusted to handle this soul poison legitimately it is neither wise nor safe to trust them with strychnine or arsenic, for if a man has no regard for the virtues of his fellowmen, can he have much for their health.

Rise up parents, patriots, mothers, sweethearts, and do your best to give to your posterity something to thank you for, and call you blessed.—Sharpsburg Fog Horn.

316,000,000 Bushels.

A message sent out from Des Moines, Ia., states that Iowa farmers have already sold 100,000,000 bushels of their 316,000,000-bushel corn crop of 1904. The average price is given as 33 cents, which means that Iowa farmers have been enriched to the extent of $33,000,000 in cash during a month or two. With more than 200,000,000 bushels remaining to sell, the Iowa farmers should receive at the same rate more than $66,000,000 in addition to the $33,000,000 already brought into the State for corn sold.

A Night Alarm.

Worse than an alarm of fire at night is the brassy cough of croup, which sounds like the children's death knell and it means death unless something is done quickly. Foley's Honey and Tar never fails to give instant relief and quickly cures the worst forms of croup. Mrs. P. L. Cordier, of Mannington, Ky., writes: "My three year old girl had a severe case of croup; the doctor said she could not live. I got a bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar and would ask those afflicted to try it. Sold by W. S. Lloyd. 29-4t

Roasts Authors and Burns Books and Sunday Courier Journal Burned Before the Congregation.

"Shakespeare's works teem with unwholesome stuff and are unfit for a place in any Christian library," said the Rev. G. C. Cromer, pastor of the Third English Lutheran church in Louisville January 29. "Lord Byron was a bad man, and his poems are harmful to any one who reads them. Robert Burns also was morally a bad man, and his writings reflect the uncleanness of his heart," he continued, and then he played copies of the writings of these men into a stove in his church in full view of his surprised congregation.

With the poetry Dr. Cromer also burned a copy of the Sunday Courier-Journal, because he said he did not approve of Sunday newspapers, and a copy of the Christmas number of the Cosmopolitan magazine, which he said he had read carefully and found to contain too little of Christ. He also announced that he intended looking carefully through his library and burning all the books which he thinks will not teach him to be a better Christian.

Is Milk, Milk?

Frequently, when discussing with dairymen, the necessity of clean and sanitary handling of milk, one is met by the objection, "What is the use of all this scientific fustling, milk is milk?"

If we go to the dealer who handles our milk and ask the above question, he will inform us that he knows his patrons by the milk they ship. That he holds a number of his patrons by all possible means, because they furnish a desirable grade of milk. He has other patrons, whose milk he takes only when he must, to satisfy his trade, and drops them on the least provocation when he has no further use for them. There is as much difference in the milk as in the men who produce it.

If we ask the consumer who uses milk on his table daily, we will find, that the more discriminating will often restrict the use of milk in his household, to the smallest amount necessary, on account of a prejudice acquired by some unpleasant experience with the milkman or the milk he furnishes.

Milk is milk only, when produced by a man of clean habits, in a clean barn, by clean and healthy cows. Milk which contains small portions of real estate, bits of straw, and parts of the fence, or portions of the cow's own overcoat, is not milk, but a filthy liquid that a person can drink with composure only because he does not know where it came from. There is as much opportunity to impart individuality to your product in the milk business, as there is in any other business.

The Hon. Wm. J. Bryan was one of President Roosevelt's visitors at the White House recently. Mr. Bryan was cordially received by the President, and remained in conversation with him for some time. Afterward, in speaking of his meeting with the President, Mr. Bryan expressed himself as endorsing heartily the proposition looking toward Government supervision of railroad freight rates, lately advanced by Mr. Roosevelt.

Poultry Notes.

Mr. I. K. Felch once said that only 5 per cent of pure bred chicks were prize winners, and only 40 per cent were of breeding excellence. One can not expect more than one prize winning bird out of even the best and most expensive sifting of eggs. A gentleman who had paid three dollars and express for a sitting of eggs wrote a breeder in the fall: "I was a good deal disappointed at hatching but three chicks from the eggs you sent me, but I gave them the best care I could, and felt pretty good when Judge Blank scored my birds at the fair to find that one of them, a cockerel, scored 96. I refused an offer of $25 for him. Put me down for two more sittings from your best pen in the spring."

You can produce the laying hen as the dairy cow is produced—by breeding for that object and by careful selection. Chance matings do not produce layers. Get acquainted with your hens; if it is not practicable to use trap nests visit the house often, and by keeping them in small flocks it is possible to nearly guess the best layers. Mark the eggs from the best layers and the chicks hatched from them, using as much care in the selection of a cockerel whose mother was a prolific layer as in the pullets. The best layers are good feeders.

A move in the right direction was made by four suburban neighbors recently. All of them kept poultry, and each a different breed. Last year, in spite of the yards, some birds would fly over the fence, and the result was cross-breeding, which made it impossible to sell eggs for hatching, as some of the breeders expected to do. In the fall they held a consultation, and agreed to all keep the same breed birds of as nearly as possible the same quality, and high class males. The breed chosen was the Barred Rock, because of their business suit of gray, which will not show the dust of the town. All say now that the certainty of not receiving a complaint that a Barred Rock egg hatched a cross between a Rock and Cochkin chicken, or vice versa, is worth the sacrifice made in choosing one breed. They expect to change cocks next year.—Inland Farmer.

Lost At Fair.

Miss Anna Knapp, of New Albany, Ind., has just recovered a purse which she lost last September at World's Fair. The purse contained $25, a watch, a locket and chain and a package of ten admission tickets to the Fair. Mrs. Hughey, of Abingdon, Ill., was the finder. The owner was traced through the medium of the admission tickets, which had been issued to the Kentucky Elk. All of the property was returned with the purse. The delay in the matter was caused by the illness and death of Mrs. Hughey's daughter, who was taken sick at the Fair.

Alaska Destined To Be A Great Dairy Country, Says Secretary Wilson.

Secretary of Agriculture Wilson believes that Alaska is destined to be a great dairy country. "There are on the southern coast," he says, "from Cook Inlet to Unalakleet, about 10,000 square miles of pasture covered with a luxuriant growth of grasses often six feet high, and on the higher elevations and more exposed situations, where the grasses are too short for cutting hay, they are nutritious and furnish splendid pasturage. Several small herds of milch cows have been kept in some of the villages for years, and their fat and sleek condition and the amount of milk they give show the possibilities of a section of country which people usually consider worthless. White people who take good care of their stock feed them from five to six months, and that may be considered necessary to keep the animals in good condition. "There is such great wealth of grass that I believe that section will ultimately become a great dairy country."

Secretary Wilson is not so confident of the advantages of Alaska for sheep. He thinks that sheep taken from upper Canada or Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, the New England States, Scotland or the Scandinavian countries will do better than those from the mild climates of the Pacific coast and the western States.

CURES WITHOUT STOMACH DOSING

Hyomel Cures Catarrh by Simple Breathing. W. S. Lloyd Refunds Money if it Fails to Cure.

A long stride toward solving the mystery of curing catarrh was taken with the discovery of Hyomel. In fact, the percentage of cures by this treatment proves it equal to the final tests.

The folly of taking medicine into the stomach to cure catarrh of the nose, throat and lungs, has been realized by physicians, but not until Hyomel was known, had they a practical method that would obviate stomach dosing.

A complete Hyomel outfit costs but $1, and consists of a neat pocket inhaler that can be used anywhere without attracting attention, a medicine dropper and a bottle of Hyomel. Extra bottles of Hyomel cost but 50c.

Breathing Hyomel through the inhaler, every particle of air that enters the nose, throat and lungs is charged with a healing balm that soothes and allays all irritation, kills the catarrhal germs and enriches the blood with additional ozone.

W. S. Lloyd has so much faith in the power of Hyomel to cure catarrh, that he is selling it under his personal guarantee to refund the money if it does not give positive relief.

INTELLIGENCE OF AN ANT.

Little Workers Possess Great Brain Power and Have a Language of Their Own.

Ants furnish us with numerous proofs of their intelligence and their prodigious industry. So remote from man from the unworldly point of view, they are of all animals those whose psychic faculties bring them nearest to him. Sociable, like him, they have undergone an evolution parallel to his which has placed them at the head of insects in the same way as he has become superior to all other mammals. The brain in ants, as in man, has undergone a disproportionate development. Like man, they possess a language which enables them to combine their efforts, and there is no human industry in which these insects have not arrived at a high degree of perfection. In certain parts of the earth human societies are superior to those of ants, in many others the civilization of ants is notably superior. No village of Kaffirs can be compared to a palace of the Termites. The classifications separate these insects (sometimes called "white ants") from the ants, since the latter are Hymenoptera, while the former are ranked among the Neuroptera, but their constructions are almost alike. These small animals, relatively to their size, build on a colossal scale compared to man; even our most exceptional monuments cannot be placed beside their ordinary buildings. The domes of triturated and plastered clay which cover their nests may rise to a height of five meters; that is to say, to dimensions equal to 1,000 times the length of the workers. The Eiffel tower, the most elevated monument of the world, is only 157 times the average height of the worker. It is 300 meters high, but to equal the Termites' audacity, it would have to attain a height of 1,600 meters.

Senator Stewart.

Senator Stewart, of Nevada, has given notice in the Senate of an amendment which he proposes to the annual Agricultural Appropriation Bill. The effect of the adoption of such amendment would be a radical step in the direction of pure food compulsion. The proposed amendment which is brief, explains itself very fully. The text follows:

"That it shall be the duty of the Secretary of Agriculture to analyze foods and drinks transported into any State or Territory of the United States or the District of Columbia, and publish the result of such analysis in three daily newspapers of general circulation. If any person shall refuse to allow the Secretary of Agriculture or any officer of the Government in his department the privilege of examining the foods or drinks in his possession, it shall be the duty of the Secretary to publish such refusal, together with the name or names of the persons refusing. To enable the Secretary of Agriculture to execute the provisions of this act three hundred thousand dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated."

"We hear it frequently asserted that, if persons will impress the thought firmly upon their minds and continue thinking about it until they have fallen asleep that they desire to awake at a certain hour in the morning, they will do so without fail." Dr. Joseph L. Boehm said to a writer in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, "but how many people have tried this method of insuring prompt awakening at a given hour in the morning only to find their rest throughout the night disturbed and uneasy."

"The brain will usually respond to the will and awaken one in the morning near the desired hour under any circumstances, but to prevent unbroken, uneasy sleep the adoption of only a very simple device is necessary. The last thing before getting into bed take a watch or clock and turn the hands to the hour at which one wishes to rise and gaze at this first long enough to fix the hour firmly on the retentive memory. Then, if no other absorbing thoughts intervene between that and the moment one is locked in slumber, the night's rest will be easy and unbroken, and promptly at the hour in the morning, as a rule, one will find oneself released from sleep and wide awake. There is no need to keep thinking of the hour continually for a number of minutes, no need to repeat it over and over in the mind; all this makes the brain uneasy and results in the disturbed slumber."

"Simply look at the watch or clock, as I have indicated, and the influence of mind over matter will be clearly demonstrated in the morning. Try it some night and observe how smoothly this psychological fact works."

Convulsion, Fits, then Epilepsy.

Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine has been so successful in curing these brain-wrecking diseases that there is every reason to believe that even the most hopeless cases can be benefited, if not fully restored.

We will be pleased to refer any one thus afflicted to many who now enjoy the blessing of health, after years of hopeless suffering.

"I have a son that had brain fever when two years old, followed by fits of the worst type, and he was pronounced incurable. I spent hundreds of dollars in vain, without effect. About fifteen years he became so bad that we were nearly driven to despair. He was lame, at Logansport, Ind. He was twenty-four years old, but he continued to grow worse, so we brought him to New York City, but he was in such a condition. He had lost his mind almost entirely. He had been in the family, could not even find his bed; he was a wreck. He had from 6 to 10 fits a day. We were used to try Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. The first bottle was used, we could see a change in him. We gave him five more bottles ever since, and he has had but two fits since last August, 1903, and then he was not well other ways. We pronounce him cured, as he can work and go anywhere. If any one wishes to ask any questions concerning this, they are at liberty to do so." H. J. BUNNELL, Lincoln, Ind.
